

From the principal

Welcome back to term two. It has been wonderful to return to Eudlo after the Easter break. As I have walked around the school this week. I have been delighted to see and hear what the students did during the holidays and how happy they were to return to their friends and their teachers.

What a fun Tuesday afternoon we had, cheering our students on for cross country. Today 15 of our students will be representing us a Mapleton in the combined small school's cross country event.

School absenteeism can impact significantly on students' learning and wellbeing.

Research shows that in Queensland, higher student attendance is associated, on average, with higher student achievement. Additionally, attending school every day helps children to build social and emotional skills such as communication, teamwork and resilience.

Next week we welcome Belinda Harvey to the Possum room Belinda will be taking Maddie Trau's place while she enjoys some leave time with her Husband, Mark. Maddie will return at the beginning of term 3.

On Monday our school seniors will guide our small community through an Anzac ceremony. Please join our students for a 2.30 start.

First Aid training

This week the students participated in the St John Ambulance Queensland First Aid in Schools program which is an initiative developed and designed exclusively for primary school students that empowers children to deliver vital first aid in an emergency and help save lives.

The main goal of this program is to empower students with life-saving skills in First Aid and resuscitation. The program engages students in interactive and age-appropriate fundamental First Aid activities and concepts led by qualified educators. The aim is to instil confidence in students to effectively handle emergency situations, contributing to building resilient and safety-conscious communities.

BECOME A VOLUNTEER - MAKE A DIFFERENCE

Cross country 2024

The fifth instalment of battles that we believe are worth having. May your battles be gently won!

Argue for sky time

Our kids need more sky time as opposed to time under a roof. There are many kids who each morning walk from their house to a car, get dropped off at school and walk straight into a building where they spend the day, before being picked up and returned home to spend the evening indoors doing homework or watching a screen.

These kids aren't feeling the earth underfoot, the sun on their faces, their gaze doesn't fall on a horizon, and certainly they're never saturated by a shower of rain. Humans need this connection with the natural world.

Time under the sky in blue and green spaces increases a person's sense of wellbeing and resilience. It can also counter some of the effects of mental ill-health. A study of 20,000 people by the University of Exeter found that just two hours in nature per week was enough to make a substantial difference. However, with sky time, it is a case of more is always more!

Even living in the city, most Australians have access to parks, bushlands, river systems, or the ocean. At home we can further connect our kids to nature by growing vegetable patches with them and by having pets that they need to nourish and nurture. At school there are cocurricular programs that offer brilliant opportunities for being outdoors. Our Stephanie Alexander Kitchen Garden program is a great Eudlo example.

Argue for sky time, if for no other reason than it feels good!
